The OpenObject module concept makes possible to use the same code base for multiple installation – for example different subsidiaries, yet enabling customization and functionalities on a per database basis.